Painless Files Transfer: Goal of FTP Beta Testing

Last month, we discussed client software as an effective solution to FTP files transfer problems.

In response to your further requests, we have begun beta testing a new process to significantly improve website files transfer.

Our goal is to make the uploading of digital print files as simple and painless as possible for you, without sacrificing accuracy or reliability.

Added Features

Features we are incorporating into the new system include:

- A simple form to complete. The information will be automatically included with your files upload.

With our current system, you need to e-mail or fax us your order specs.

- A file tracking number is also automatically assigned.

Our current system doesn't offer tracking capabilities.

- You will get an e-mail message confirming that the upload was successful and giving you the assigned file tracking number.

- You may also opt to have your production coordinator notified that your files have been uploaded.

Your Help Needed

We want to stress that this is a beta testing program. We have made great strides and now need your assistance.

We hope you will give the new process a try. Just log on via the URL in the internet box and follow the instructions. After your test run, please take a couple of minutes to let us know what you think about the overall process, the clarity of our instructions and ease of use.

Suggestions Welcomed

We also welcome your suggestions for improvements or additional features you would like to see. Please let us know what operating system and version you're using.

A Java applet expands the functionality of the new system. To take advantage of these added features, Java should be enabled in your web browser.

For example, Java will allow you to upload complete folders, rather than sending individual files one at a time.

You can still use our normal web file transfer site until this new system is functioning to your satisfaction.

If you prefer, you can obtain client software for FTP files transfer as outlined in the March Overnight Lite story (available on our website).

Now It's Our Turn

Each month we respond to your questions. Now we have one for you.

Does your copy of Overnight Lite arrive in good condition every month? Does it survive the mailing experience without cracking or rubbing? Does it arrive neatly folded, or is it wrinkled from postal handling? Have there been months when it didn't arrive at all?

We are currently evaluating the interaction of paper and the digital printing process in the real world of the U.S. mail. Your response will not just help us create a better newsletter; your input will tell us more about rub resistance of any mailed item, as well as digitally printed color book covers.

Simply visit the website below and take 30 seconds to fill out the form.

Thanks to our friend George "Grif" Griffin at Instant & Small Commercial Printer for suggesting this topic.

Speaking of Paper

In case you wondered, Overnight Lite is printed on 100# Sappi Lustro Gloss Text. This coated book paper is available in both 80# and 100# weights, and also comes in matching 80#, 100# and 120# C2S cover weights.

This No.1 grade paper features a 90 brightness rating and contains 10% postconsumer recycled fiber yet is pH neutral. All weights are available in both a dull and gloss finish.

Lustro papers are extremely well suited to Copresco's color digital printing process, resist rubbing and make four-color process images and heavy solids look their very best.

Billy: I got 100 in school today.

Mother:

That's wonderful!
What did you get 100 in?

Billy: Two things: I got 50 in math, and 50 in spelling.

Two men got lost in the woods while hunting one day. Trying to reassure his friend, Larry said, "Don't worry. All we need to do is shoot in the air three times, stay where we are, and someone will come find us."

They shot in the air three times, but no one came. After a while, they tried again, still with no response. When they decided to try once more, Elmer said, "I hope it works this time. We're down to our last three arrows."

Nowadays people don't ask, "What's cooking?" They ask, "What's thawing?"

One man was boasting to another fisherman about a 20-pound salmon he caught.

"Twenty pounds, huh?" the other guy remarked with skepticism. "Were there any witnesses?"

"Of course," the man replied. "Otherwise it would have weighed 30 pounds."

Little girl: I'd like to buy a puppy, sir. How much do they cost?

Man: Twenty dollars apiece.

Little girl: Well, how much is a whole one?

At a drugstore, a woman wanted to buy shaving lotion for her 70-year-old husband. Not knowing what kind to get, she asked, "Have you got any of that 'Old Spouse'?"

I was so surprised at my birth, I couldn't speak for a year and a half.

When a man says, "There are only two minutes left in the football game," it's the same amount of time as when a woman says, "I'll be ready in two minutes."

Snip: Look, there's a baby snake.

Snap: How can you tell it's a baby?

Snip: I can tell by its rattle.

Customer (to slow waiter): Have you ever been to the zoo?

Waiter:

No, sir.

Customer:

Well, you should go. You'd get a kick out of watching the snails zip by.

Boss: One who is late when you're early, and early when you're late.

If you laid all the cars in America end to end, you'd have something almost as bad as what I face on the way home every night.

First farmer:
My scarecrow is so natural that it frightened every crow off my farm.

Second farmer:
That's nothing. The scarecrow on our farm scared the crows so much, they brought back all the corn they stole last year.

Mitch: I wish I had the money to buy an elephant.

Tommy: What would you want with an elephant?

Mitch: Nothing. I just wish I had the money.

A chemist stepped up to the pharmacy counter and asked for some prepared acetylsalicylic acid.

"You mean aspirin?" the druggist asked.

"Oh, yes." The chemist replied. "I can never remember that name."

Carl: I got up early and tried to go riding this morning.

Mike: Horseback?

Carl: Yep. He got back two hours before me.
