Copies Overnight Unveils New Corporate Web Site

Copies Overnight, Inc. has unveiled a completely revised corporate Web site at

<http://www.onight.com>

The site features an array of valuable links to transmit electronic files for digital printing and to communicate with key Copies Overnight personnel.

An easy-to-use web interface with Copies Overnight's anonymous FTP site offers customers a fast way to send PC and Macintosh digital files for printing on our Docutech publishing system network.

Direct Links to the Top

You can go right to the top with e-mail links to co-owners Steve Johnson and Chuck Legorreta. Additional links are provided to production coordinators Denny Willison and Lynn Buck for estimates, specifications or to check the status of work in progress.

Other Web Site Offerings

You can also track package shipments of completed jobs through direct links to United Parcel Service, RPS, Express Mail, Fed Ex, Airborne Express and DHL Worldwide Express. (You'll find details about package tracking on the Internet in TechTopics No. 5).

Speaking of TechTopics, selected issues of the technical bulletin series are readily available on the web site. The publications feature in-depth information on digital imaging, binding, finishing and other important topics. Site visitors can also subscribe to the series or to Copies Overnight Lite.

Internet browsers will find details about our printing on-demand services and digital technology capabilities, including company news, press releases and other useful information.

Easy Ways to Communicate

The corporate web site gives customers another digital link to Copies Overnight. You can also communicate with us directly through our First Class computer bulletin board.

So when you need help with looseleaf or bound documents, call the company that can meet all your digital technology needs.

QuarkXPress 4.02 Updater Released

Guess what... Following the story in our March issue, Quark, Inc. released a 4.02 updater for Mac OS and Windows 95/NT. According to Quark, the update "fixes many problems and issues users have been experiencing with QuarkXPress 4.0x." No kidding?

You can get the update on the Internet at <http://www.quark.com/ftp001.htm>

Let Us Know How You Like the New Format

We're trying out this larger format to meet the needs of readers who want more technical information on digital document preparation and printing on-demand. Please let us know what you think about the new style via a fax or e-mail message.

Want More Jokes?

Readers who don't get their fill of humor with our monthly editions, can find more jokes on our Copies Overnight Lite Web site at

<http://www.onight.com/lite.htm>

Then go to Discarded Jokes. A few words of warning: these jokes were discarded for good reason.

Good Friday

Copies Overnight will be open on Good Friday, April 10. We wish you all a happy Easter weekend.

Q: Did you hear what happened when all the king's men played an April Fool's joke on Humpty Dumpty?

A: He fell for it.

Senator Kyl of Arizona proposed that we move the April tax filing deadline to Election Day. That might encourage more voters to "compare what they pay with what they get."

Why is it that a "slight tax increase" costs you two hundred dollars, while a "substantial tax cut" saves you thirty cents?

They say the average taxpayer works four months out of the year for the government. I'm not even sure people who work for the government work four months out of the year for the government.

It finally happened! Now it takes more brains to fill out the income tax form than it did to make the income.

In the office of a loan company:
ASK ABOUT OUR PLANS FOR OWNING YOUR HOME.

"Ma'am, the speed limit on this highway is 65mph," the highway patrolman said to the old woman at the wheel. "It's dangerous for you to go so slow."

"But officer," she protested, "I was only obeying the signs I saw that said '22,' not '65.'"

"No, no—those signs mean you're on Highway 22," the cop explained gently as he glanced in the back seat. He noticed two passengers, wide-eyed and trembling. "Lady, are those two okay back there?"

"They'll be fine, thank you," she replied. "We just got off Highway 119."

The local police have stopped me so many times for speeding, they finally decided just to give me a season ticket.

If you want your spouse to pay strict attention to every word you say, try talking in your sleep.

Bulletin we saw:
"The Clairvoyance Society will not be meeting today as scheduled due to unforeseen circumstances."

A visitor to a chemistry lab was told he was witnessing scientists as they looked for a universal solvent. "What's a 'universal solvent?'" he asked.

"That's a liquid which will dissolve anything put into it," his guide explained.

"Fascinating," the visitor said. "So what will you keep it in?"

Ad we saw:
"For sale: second-hand tombstone. Excellent buy for someone named Murphy."

In a Pennsylvania cemetery:
PERSONS ARE PROHIBITED FROM PICKING FLOWERS FROM ANY BUT THEIR OWN GRAVES.

The problem with opera is there is always too much singing.

Sign we saw in a dance hall:
GOOD CLEAN DANCING EVERY NIGHT BUT SUNDAY.

A tourist stopped in the middle of a busy New York City intersection and asked the traffic cop, "If you were from Idaho and were here for a few days, where would you go first?"

The policeman looked at all the traffic and said, "Back home."

A weary, worn and embattled knight returned to his lord. "Sire, I have spent an entire month fighting, pillaging and ravaging your enemies to the east."

"What do you mean, east?"

replied the startled lord. "My enemies are in the west. I don't have any enemies to the east!"

"Oh," mumbled the knight. "Well—you do now."
