

You are the real winner... Awards Confirm Copresco's Care For Your Projects

Copresco's done it again, and we couldn't have done it without you!

It's A Major Prize

The results of the Great Lakes Graphics Association's 2025 Graphic Excellence Awards are in, and Copresco has once again brought home a wagon-load of prizes.

These awards recognize the amazing quality and attention to detail that we lavish on your books, manuals, publications and other printing projects.

Copresco President Steve Johnson accepts the Gutenberg Award from Great Lakes Graphics Association President Mary Lawrence.

Highest Recognition

Top honors went to a literary journal for the University of Notre Dame. The Gutenberg Award recognizes the very best entry in its category.

This annual publication encourages creativity and recognizes student writing and artwork of notable quality.

The short run-length and high-quality fine art content make Copresco the ideal source while keeping the project affordable for the English Department's limited budget.

Awards of Excellence

Next up were Awards of Excellence for several high-quality color projects in different categories.

An annual report for a national foundation grabbed the attention of the judges for its stellar color quality and tricky crossover graphics.

Charts and Blueprints

A proposal for economic redevelopment for a municipality turned to Copresco to deliver its message of strategy, design, engineering, and storytelling to create exceptional places to enrich the community.

The charts and engineering drawings married with quality typography and photography are right up Copresco's alley.

For Children and Adults Alike

Beautiful Nonsense, the debut color children's book by budding author and illustrator Dmitri Boardman, took honors in the juvenile books category.

Worthy of Merit

Certificates of Merit were awarded for projects including a "thought for the day" style book printed in black and white.

Single color printing rarely competes against full color entries, but bringing quality and elegance to black-only print is one of Copresco's specialties.

Available On Request

Also awarded was Copresco's own case history series, many of which originally appeared in Overnight Lite. This series chronicles some of the unusual "they said it couldn't be done" projects that Copresco has produced for clients just like you.

To obtain copies of the entire series, contact Copresco. These stories may inspire your own creativity.

Pick Up That Phone

In a world of chatbots, AI, and incessant text messaging, it might seem that communication is easier than ever.

Unfortunately, these technologies can also be misused to avoid customer contact. Obvious case in point: Amazon.

Chatbots Aren't Friendly

Amazon uses chatbots and webforms to channel and restrict customer inquiries and complaints.

At some point, frustration with these limited channels reaches a boiling point, and the only logical solution is to pick up the phone and call. Oh, wait...

It's A Secret

Amazon's "contact us" webpage has no phone number! Search the site; no phone number anywhere and no email.

How about writing a letter? Nope, no mailing address. You can't even send them a fax.

We Have Their Number

Sooner or later, you'll need to call Amazon. Here, courtesy of Copresco, is the number Amazon doesn't want you to have: (888) 280-4331

Once you fight your way past the automated attendant, your call will be answered by a live human, albeit in a call center on the other side of the world.

Amazon wants your business, but they don't want to talk to you.

Call Copresco

We're the opposite. We love to talk with you! That's why our phone number is clearly posted on our website and at the bottom of Overnight Lite every month.

To make it even easier to reach out, here are the direct phone numbers of some key Copresco contacts:

- Steve Johnson(630) 690-0725
- Lynn Buck(630) 690-2139
- Jessica Pinkous(630) 690-2164
- Accounting(630) 690-2079
- Shipping.....(630) 690-2089

So when you need help with books, manuals, and publications, call the company with friendly, helpful, experienced staff. Call Copresco.

Do you ever wonder why America doesn't have any Knock-Knock jokes? It's because freedom rings.

A ham sandwich walks into a bar and orders a beer, bartender says "sorry, we don't serve food here."

When the Jones Family moved into their new house, a visiting relative asked five-year-old Sammy how he liked the new place. "It's terrific!" he said. "I have my own room, Mike has his own room, and Jamie has her own room. But poor mom is still in with dad."

Which flag is the most highly rated?

The American flag. It has 50 stars.

I was in an Apple store when it got robbed. Turns out I was an iWitness.

What kind of shoes do chickens wear?

Reebok-bok-bok.

One of the best prayers we've heard: "Lord, please make me the kind of person my dog thinks I am."

A vacationer telephoned a seaside hotel to ask where it was located. "It's only a stone's throw from the beach," he was told. "Well, how will I recognize it?" asked the man. The hotel clerk answered, "It's the one with all the broken windows."

I had a girlfriend once who absolutely loved comic books. But I had to break up with her, she had too many issues.

My brother-in-law decided that instead of trying to do something and failing, he'd try to do nothing and succeed.

A lady once told me that her dog can retrieve a stick from a mile away, but I thought it was a bit far-fetched.

The United States is a free country where every man can do as his wife pleases.

To boost sales, a regional airline introduced a special, two-for-one fare so spouses could accompany their mates on business trips. Anticipating valuable testimonials from satisfied customers, the PR Department sent out questionnaires to the spouses asking how they had enjoyed their free trip. Letters poured in asking, "Trip? What Trip?"

What did the janitor say when he popped out of the closet? SUPPLIES!

What's the leading cause of dry skin? Towels.
